The goal of grieving is not to hurry up and get over it, but to fully experience it. You can't go around grief. You can't go under it, over it - or run away from it. Dealing with sorrow straight-on is the means to getting to the other side.

What you can expect at GriefCare:

- a confidential setting where it is safe for hurting, grieving people to share about their loss.
- a setting where people can feel unconditionally heard and accepted.
- information and resources about the grieving process making the mystery of grief more understandable.
- help to better understand God - He is with us - He cares - He will help.

Overview of GriefCare - An 8-Week Series

1. sharing the particular circumstances of loss*
2. identifying the "myths" of grief
3. how normal grief affects thoughts, feelings, and behavior
4. spiritual issues and scripture linked to grief and God's caring
5. physical aspects of grief and ways to take care of yourself
6. stages and phases of grief and hope
7. four tasks of mourning
8. all the family, social, financial, personal changes and adjustments to be made
9. what "acceptance" means

*Although the loss of anyone or anything significant can cause one to experience grief, GriefCare is focused on losses caused by death
